

THIS WEEK AT THE CENTER FOR ETHICS*

Friday, February 20, 2009

- Abstract accepted at NASSM

- Doctoral Candidate Justin Barnes has had an abstract accepted for presentation at the 2009 Columbia, SC- North American Society for Sport Management (NASSM) Conference May 27-30. The University of South Carolina Department of Sport and Entertainment Management will. Acceptance rate was 54%. Justin's paper, Time for a Change: Why Rule Based Ethics Are Problematic for Sport Managers, is co-authored by Dr. Stoll and doctoral candidate, David Brunner.

- Job Searches for Ph.D. students

- Peter VanMullem traveled to St Cloud last week and next week to Coastal Carolina, and is a final in two other searches..

- Atlanta Braves

- The Center finished and sent out curriculums to the Atlanta Braves Major League Baseball Team. The Braves are in their fourth year with Winning with Character, a non-profit organization dedicated to improving moral reasoning and character development of athletic teams. The Center's staff develops the curriculum for WWC.

- Article accepted

- Dr. Jackie Williams, of Slippery Rock University, and a former student of Dr. Stoll, had an article accepted for publishing in the March NATA (National Athletic Trainers Association) Newsletter, titled the Ethics of Supervising students. It will be featured in the "Ethics Column". Dr. William's research at Idaho focused on ethics education of NATA educators.

- Research Requests

- Research support requested from a Master's student at University of Louisville and a professor at Indiana State University

- Dr. Stoll – Career Perspective

- Dr. Angela Lumpkin is revising her 8th edition text, Introduction to Physical Education, Exercise Science, and Sport Studies. Dr. Stoll is one of the featured individuals in one section called, Career Perspective, which describes the work of the individual and how one can prepare to enter that career.

- Book Cover and Abstract Accepted

- Dr. Lynda Cochran of SUNY Brockport has sent a picture of her book cover. Dr Cochran is a former student of Dr. Stoll and did her dissertation on values, leisure programming, and baby boomers under Dr. Stoll's tutelage. To be published next month, Dr. Cochran's book was solicited by Human Kinetics immediately on completion of her dissertation. Dr. Sperazza also has been accepted to the Northeastern Recreation Research Symposium for her work, Boomers and Seniors: What Drives Leisure Participation, which also builds from her dissertation.